

B: the tangential pole component governs alignment; the normal component does not

